

The New York Jets had 992 more fans in attendance in their second game against the Miami Dolphins than from their first game played against them during the 1993 season .